

Talks by Dr. Wang Xiaolu

Sichuan University

Feb 20 & 24, 2014

February 20, 2014

Thursday

11:30 am : LL 165

From Authentic
Marxism to Western Marxism: the Culture of Literary
Studies in Mainland
China Today

February 24, 2014

Monday

9:30 am : LL 165

20 世纪作为中国
时尚与观念形态

Fashion as Conception History During the 20th Century
China

Dr. Wang Xiaolu is professor of Literature and Cultural Criticism at College of Literature & Journalism and College of Foreign Literature & Cultures, Sichuan University (SCU), China. He also serves as academic director of Center for American Studies and chair of Professorship Committee at the College of Overseas Education at Sichuan University. He was an adjunct faculty professor at ASU in 2007. Currently, he is a member of the International Advisory Board of CLCWEB: Comparative Literature and Culture and the executive editor of Comparative Literature: East & West. He has been awarded grants as visiting professor at the University of Toronto, the University of Chicago, Duke University, and Ghent University, Belgium. He was a visiting scholar at Soochow University of Taipei, Chinese University, City University and Baptist University in Hong Kong. His academic interests cover the fields of cultural criticism, literary theory and cross-cultural studies. His recent publications mainly include the scholarly books A Study of Western Marxist Cultural Criticism (Peking UP, 2012); A Study of Key Concepts in Cultural Criticism (Peking UP, 2007), A Companion to Cultural Studies (Trans. Nanking UP, 2009), A Study of Chinese Literary Thought in North America (co-eds. Chengdu: Bashu, 2008) and Thoughts in Dialogue: Between Literature and Culture (forthcoming).